Chautauqua Story

During the Chautauqua Movement from 1874 to 1930, educators and entertainers traveled the country in order to bring educational, cultural, and recreational programs to ordinary people in non-urban areas throughout America. These “Circuit Chautauquas” visited more than 10,000 towns. Over 400 locations in the country held an annual summer Chautauqua assembly. These assemblies brought prominent speakers, educators, artists, and entertainers at a time when less than two percent of adults held high school degrees. Nationwide, an estimated 45 million Americans attended a Chautauqua. Chautauquas also provided training to thousands of teachers and furthered public education in America.

The Colorado Chautauqua in Boulder was established in 1898 as a summer school for teachers and to provide instruction and entertainment for the community in “one of the most beautiful and healthful locations on the continent.” Throughout its history, the Colorado Chautauqua has been the largest and most prominent Chautauqua in the West. It remains the only continuously operating Chautauqua West of the Mississippi River. And it is the nation’s only operating Chautauqua with grounds open to the public free of charge.

The Chautauqua Dining Hall is one of two buildings constructed for the Colorado Chautauqua’s opening day on July 4, 1898. As an exceptional example of the Chautauqua Movement, the Colorado Chautauqua property, including the Dining Hall, was designated a National Historic Landmark in 2006.
